

3 June 2009

Paul McCarthy visits Holland for his exhibition Air Pressure

Utrecht – Last week the American artist Paul McCarthy visited the Botanical Gardens in De Uithof, Utrecht. He determined the location of the ten huge, inflatable sculptures which will be shown in this idyllic landscape from 4 July until 13 September.

The exhibition is titled Air Pressure and shows a part of McCarthy's oeuvre that has not previously been shown in the Netherlands.

Familiar themes from McCarthy's work (such as the Daddies Ketchup Bottle and Santa Butt Plug) are given shape in Air Pressure in the form of inflatable versions. McCarthy is also introducing a number of new sculptures inspired by everyday icons of the consumer society. The inflatables vary in size from 4 to 24 metres, their colour and idiom forming a splendid contrast with the decor of the botanical gardens.

The Air Pressure exhibition is suitable for the whole family!

AIR PRESSURE
PAUL
McCARTHY

DE UITHOF, UTRECHT
4 JULI -
13 SEPTEMBER
2009

WWW.AIRPRESSURE.NL

Universiteit Utrecht

For more information see www.airpressure.nl
The Air Pressure exhibition is a project by the Municipality of Utrecht and Utrecht University.

Air Pressure
Dates: 4 July - 13 September 2009
Opening hours: open daily from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.
Location: Botanische Tuinen Utrecht (Fort Hoofddijk),
Budapestlaan 17, Utrecht

Note for the press:
On 2 July there will be a press conference in the Botanical Gardens. You can register for this by contacting Nienke van Beers via n.van.beers@utrecht.nl or via +31(0) 6 48460546

Photographs can be downloaded from www.airpressure.nl under the heading 'Press'. For more information please contact Nienke van Beers via the above email address or telephone number.